We deliver open source to the world faster, more securely and more cost effectively than any other company. If you're interested in a career at Canonical, we are a remote-first company so please apply to any suitable role as skills are valued more than location, despite some having a preferred geographic preference.

What your day will look like

Work with the Ubuntu desktop user community to research new features and improvements

Collaborate with product managers and engineers to shape the future of Ubuntu desktop

Create world-class desktop and web interactions for Ubuntu

Evolve and evangelise design systems that drive consistency and efficiency

Provide direction to the design team, keeping our efforts aligned with product strategy and best practices

Interact with the open source community to encourage adoption of features and designs

Managing a team of UX designers focusing on Canonical's developer experience

UX designers should be excellent communicators who are at ease working with a complex mix of engineers, designers and executives. They represent us at cross-functional company meetings and must present their design position with clarity and precision. They should be confident and excited to take on complex design challenges. They should also be able to connect their design leadership to the strategic vision of the company.

What we are looking for in you

Excellent academic results at school and university

Bachelor's or equivalent in User Experience, Design, or STEM

Knowledge and passion for user experience, technology and design

Commitment to continuous learning and improvement – curious, flexible, scientific

Drive to finish work and celebrate success

Confidence in user research practices

Engagement with the latest design research and innovation
